QUADRANGLE

VOLUME 75
1992
LAGRANGE COLLEGE
LAGRANGE, GEORGIA

As the saying goes, "time waits for no man," but what happens to those that are left in the wake of change? Does the change to the new bring the death of the old? Must the past be destroyed to clear a space for the future? Does the current of time wash away everything in its wake?

there comes a time when everything and everybody must find a place for the past in the present.

JOHN WESLEY
1703 — 1791
FELLOW AT LINCOLN COLLEGE
OXFORD
CHAPLAIN TO GEORGIA COLONY
UNDER GENERAL JAMES
OGLETHORPE

Our past serves as a valuable reminder of where we have been, what we have done and what we have seen. Most importantly, the past is a guide-post by which we see our progress into the future.

to destroy the past is to say that what one has done had no meaning and no purpose. There is meaning in everything, no matter how trivial it seems at the time, when viewed from the standpoint of experience.

The traditions of the past serve as building blocks for the traditions which everyone creates now. Without these strong building blocks to support us, the buildings one makes in life will crumble.

As time moves on the past moves on with it.

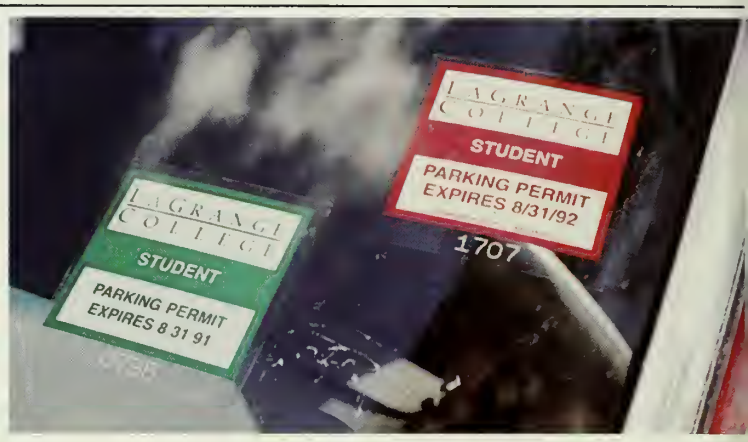

Everyone must build his or her new traditions on the traditions of the past.

A great and good man has been taken from among us, and t is fitting that we as a community pay tribute to him and thank God that for over eight decades he lived and labored for good among us. Fuller E. Callaway, r.(1907-1992) has left a legacy which blesses us at every turn and an example which challanges us all to try to stand in the breach and use the talents, resources, and opportunities which God has entrusted to us to continue to build a better community, state, nation, and, indeed, a better world.

Fuller E. Callaway, Jr., with his extremely bright mind and farsighted vision, for many years applied himself to develop further the high quality textile industry started here in LaGrange by his father. That industry gave thousands of persons good jobs and economic security and made LaGrange a vibrant, growing community. But more, this great industrial leader was a man of great heart, a humanitarian with great concerns, and a philanthropist of great deeds. He provided resources which built better schools, better churches, better medical facilities and offered scholarships for many of our citizens. Through his philanthropy, the city and county have been able to serve their citizens more effectively in a hundred ways: through beautiful parks, recreational and cultural opportunities and facilities for the conservation of our community's history.

Imagine this city without the Chattahoochee Valley Art Museum, with just mediocre schools, and without the superbly equipped West Georgia Medical Center. Imagine LaGrange without the College with its facilities for science education, its library, classroom buildings, its chapel, its art building and museum, its theatre, its student center, and its other beautifully restored buildings. Imagine LaGrange without its touches of attractive landscaping, its stately churches, its pluses in county and city services in scores of ways, its people's great pride in our city. His influence for good upon our citizens extends far beyond our city limits to college campuses, hospitals, and other institutions throughout the South.

He had an uncanny ability to take the long view of things and to respond to the changing needs of his industry and his community. Upon his retirement, the Foundation he created provided land for attracting high quality industries to LaGrange. The Foundation continues his legacy of generosity and commitment . The recent magnificent gift to LaGrange College of the Callaway Auditorium, the activities building, the swimming pool and Calla-Cabana, six tennis courts, two softball fields and some adjacent properties is a testament to Mr. Callaway's largess.

Why would such a successful industrialist turn his attention and resources to such enormous philanthropy? He had a heart which was constrained early in life to obey the great commandment to love God with all of one's heart, soul and mind, and to love one's neighbor as oneself. This vision was instilled upon him by his Baptist minister grandfather and his parents, Fuller E. Callaway and Ida Cason Callaway. Fuller E. Callaway, Jr. and his gracious wife, Alice Hand Callaway, together, as equal partners, followed this vision and expressed it in new and effective ways that have benefitted us at every turn.

Do not think good things just happen; nor should we with ingratitude take them for granted. All of these benefits which we enjoy have flowed directly from Mr. Callaway's firm intent and insistence. He has provided the resources but he has also given the vision, and set the directions and dimensions of his good works. The benefits we enjoy have flowed from his mind, his vision, the values he cherished, and his great, divinely inspired humanity.

Walter Y. Murphy, President of LaGrange College

Main Events

RENOVATION

Building traditions took on physical forms this year with the renovation and modernization of the campus. After months of labor Hawkes was re-opened and serves as a women's residence hall on the second, third and fourth floors and houses the Education Department on the first floor. Other buildings were given face-lifts with new paint jobs, landscape work and installation of fire safety systems.

COMPUTER INSTALLATION

This year brought LaGrange College into the Information Age with the installation of a campus wide computer network. The entire college community can now access a variety of computer programs and services including WordPerfect, Lotus 1-2-3, Mathmatica, the library catalog, the cafeteria menu, and lists of campus boxes and phone numbers. Terminals are available in dormitory rooms, the Writing Center, and the computer lab. In addition the network will be eventually expanded to reach every building on campus. Banks library also went on-line with a completely computerized version of the card catalog and a computerized system for checking out books.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK

The richness and diversity that international students contribute to our campus community was celebrated during LaGrange College's annual International Week, held this year February 17 through February 23. A variety of events recognized the significant contributions of the over 60 students representing 12 different countries from around the world . Students from nations ranging from the Bahamas to Zimbabwe shared their cultures in exhibits, a fashion show, a food fair and International Olympic games.

COMMUNITY CELEBRATION

LaGrange College reaffirmed the spirit of community during its second annual Celebration of Community held April 29 through May 2, 1992. Faculty, administration, staff, and students joined together to strengthen relationships and to heighten academic interest. As part of the celebration, both students and faculty were honored for their contributions to the college. In addition, an outdoor banquet was held to foster community spirit and a workshop on improving communications within the College community was held.

Contact

Beginning this year LaGrange College instituted a new tradition. Cultural programs, called Contact, were designed to unify our diverse college community and to advance cultural knowledge. Each week on Wednesday 11:00 classes were not scheduled so that the programs, appealing to every interest imaginable, might be more broadly seen. Some of the Contact programs presented were storytelling, music concerts, dance performances and poetry readings by famous writers. Contact also offered up human interest presentations on topics such as date rape, AIDS awareness and alcohol abuse.

World Events

Former Soviet Union

Around the world old traditions were shattered and new traditions were formed. The dawn of the decade saw the collapse of the Soviet Union when its former President, Mikhail Gorbachev, set into action a series of democratic reforms that would result in the elimination of his job. For some, the changes were unwelcome though, and an unsuccessful coup of conservative leaders only sped up the disintegration of the Soviet Union and the creation of the Commonwealth of Independent States.

With the demise of the Soviet Union, communism crumbled throughout Eastern Europe giving rise to the emergence of democracy. The breakdown of the authority of Yugoslavian President Tito initiated civil wars between ethnic groups in the six republics.

Environmental Issues

The environment was also an issue of great concern during this year. Environmentalists worldwide held protest rallies to heighten public awareness of the devastation of the Brazilian rainforest. In Kuwait, both the people and the land were affected by the devastation of the Persian Gulf War. During the war, Saddam Hussein's forces ignited hundreds of oil wells, sweeping smoke and gases as far south as the Arabian Sea.

Middle East

In the face of many conflicts and controversies throughout the year, peace remained a major concern. James A. Baker, III, President George Bush's Secretary of State, played a vital role in engineering peace initiatives in the war-torn countries of the Middle East. As a sign of potential peace, after nearly seven years as a hostage in the Middle East, Terry Anderson and all of the remaining United States hostages were released from captivity.

American Controversies

In a year of new traditions, national controversies ran rampant. President George Bush's nomination of Judge Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court began a firestorm of controversy. Charges of sexual harassment were leveled against the Justice by former co-worker Anita Hill. The nationally televised hearings that ensued had ramifications that reverberated throughout the workplace nationwide.

As the economy continued in turmoil, worldwide attention turned its focus on the announcement by Magic Johnson, the famed basketball star, that he was infected by the HIV virus that causes AIDS. This announcement stunned millions and caused many to realize that AIDS is a disease common to all of humanity, not just special groups.
